Whatever kind of riding you wish for - you will find it in Scotland

Few and far between are there places left where you can enjoy the solitude and unspoilt countryside still to be found in Scotland. Striding high on the hills or ambling through hidden valleys, you will feel a million miles from the stresses and strains of life.

Explore the South of Scotland Countryside Trails - a 350km network of way marked routes in spectacular open hill ground with breathtaking views. Riders can now journey for days at a time on old drove roads, roman roads, disused railways and other tracks. Go in search of history and learn about folk tales, myths and legends - riding these ancient routes is like taking a step back in time!

The 95km Buccleuch Country Ride offers seven routes through stunning Borders scenery in the Selkirk and Hawick areas and is marked with blue and white horseshoe signs. The Tyne Esk Trails offer four signposted circular routes in glorious Midlothian countryside, each between 10-15 miles long. Explore new riding paths and tracks in the Pentland Hills Regional Park or discover miles and miles of rights of way for horses in beautiful South Lanarkshire with a good choice of rides from Biggar, Lanark and Lesmahagow. The opportunities are only limited by your imagination!

You will find detailed descriptions for all these routes and more on www.ride-scotland.co.uk including downloadable maps, tips for planning your trip and route suggestions for half and full day rides.

Riding in Scotland is great therapy for body and soul - find yourself in horse heaven!
